please join us for a morning of panels and discussion on trans education in the classroom

June 29, 2017
9:00am-12:00pm
(registration & refreshments @ 8:30am)

Location: O'Hara Ballroom
O'Hara Student Center
4024 O'Hara Street

event details:

The University of Pittsburgh promotes a trans-inclusive learning community. A central part of this process is education inside the classroom. This morning event is a “flipped” conference designed to engage participants in trans topics across the disciplines and in a wide range of professions with a focus on curriculum transformation. Join activists and professionals from the Pittsburgh community in a dialog with participants from the University Center for Teaching and Learning, program and department representatives, and faculty and graduate students across the University schools and disciplines.

Sponsored by the Year of Diversity, the Office of Diversity and Inclusion, and the GSWS Program.
